

Luke Lao

ENGG 126 A

Homework 432 Progress Report on Project 1

As of March 13, 2022, the group has already started coding the project. Upon first attempt to code the project, some issues arose due to missing installations of Cygwin, however, this has already been resolved. Afterwards, the group discussed the project and decided to prioritize a function that can parse user input and make it viable as an input parameter to commands. Currently, it is believed that this is functioning correctly and different commands were passed correctly. The redirection operator for output has also been confirmed to function correctly. Unfortunately, redirection for input and pipe has not yet been done, therefore, the group believes this should be the focus moving forward. Given a week time limit alongside thesis work, it would be highly appreciated if there was an extension of the deadline.